2. Credit for educational activities shall be based on the assessment of each student's academic achievements during each semester, making it possible to evaluate the degree of achieving the particular learning outcomes by the student. Obtaining credit for educational activities ending with final tests as well as re-sit tests shall be completed before the examination session begins. The only exception are lectures ending with final tests – in that case, re-sit tests may be organised during the examination session. University teachers are obliged to organise at least one re-sit test for the partial grades.

2. University teachers may administer examinations before examination sessions (the so-called 'zero date examinations'). The approval criteria for zero date examinations shall be defined by the university teachers who conduct the educational activities. Negative marks obtained for zero date examinations are not included in the examination records.
3. Each student has the right to take one re-sit examination in each failed module.
4. Students who are absent from an examination on the date provided for in § 17 (4) and have not justified their absence within 3 working days from the date of the examination, lose this opportunity to take the examination. Unjustified absence during examinations shall be considered as not passing the examinations and results in a negative grade.
5. If an examiner establishes during an examination that a student's work is not their own or that a student has used unauthorised materials, the student shall receive a negative grade in this examination, and the examiner notifies the Rector in writing about this fact in order to initiate the investigation procedure.
6. The competent Dean may decide, on a student's request, to organise a special committee examination. A justified request (with detailed justification) for such an examination shall be submitted by the student no later than within 3 days from the date the results of the test are published in the USOS.
7. Academic teachers have the right to confirm the identity of students taking tests or examinations before these tests or examinations.

2. Students may resume their studies according to the study plan for a given field of study/specialisation, available at the University at the time of resuming studies.
3. Decisions on resuming studies are taken by the competent Deans who specify the number of ECTS credits to be recognised and the semester for which the person resuming their studies is enrolled, considering any possible curriculum differences. Determining the curriculum differences by the Dean is based on the study plan for the academic year in which studying shall be resumed.
4. Resuming studies shall not be possible if the Dean of the Unit concerned finds that it is not possible for the person resuming their studies to complete all the modules included in the course curriculum (e.g. in the case of phasing-out of/discontinuing recruitment for this field of study).
